Dr Rowan Lewis

Tuesday 25th May 10.30 ACST, 11.00am AEST

How Young People Develop their Engagement in Faith: Unpacking the Mechanics of Spirituality, Religion and Belief

What are the mechanisms by which young people develop their engagement in faith? And how can a school positively and constructively influence these processes? In this session, we will look at the insights that religious psychology offer to these questions.

Dr Rowan Lewis (BCom (Hons), MCS, PhD) Over the last 15 years Rowan has created and led formation programs for youth and young adults as well as specialised in accompanying young people amidst times of doubt and spiritual transition. His PhD research focused on the dynamics of a faith crisis. He currently serves as the Academic Coordinator for Pastoral Theology at ACOM (Australian College of Ministry). Together with his wife Kirra, Rowan lives in Melbourne with three energetic teenagers who keep life suitably animated.

Professor Br David Hall FMS

Monday 24th May 1.00pm ACST, 1.30pm AEST

The distinctiveness of faith-based education: implications for formation

All education is transformational and faith-based education seeks to engage in this endeavour in a particular way. Integral to our effectiveness in this space is how we understand what we are trying to do in the task of formation.

Professor Br David Hall FMS has been a principal of several Catholic schools; primary and secondary, co-educational and single-sex. Br David is involved in the governance of independent Catholic schools as a member of boards and councils and also conducts workshops and other professional learning activities in the areas of spiritual formation and leadership. He is leading an extensive professional development program for Catholic school leaders across 22 countries in Africa.

Dr Phil Daughtry

Monday 24th May 9.00am ACST 9.30am AEST

Spiritual formation in the contemporary context

A brief introduction to spirituality as a human phenomenon and its nuances in the Australian social context.

Participatory engagement with simple conversational and reflective exercises that assist spiritual awareness and connections to the Christian story.

Phil Daughtry is a scholar/practitioner in the field of spirituality studies and practical formation. His gift is the curation of conversational and reflective spaces that allow people to find their own spiritual voice and to pay attention to the movements of the sacred in their experience and story. He engages public spiritual conversation from the perspective of the Christian contemplative tradition and a keen sensitivity to the contemporary and Australian context. He is passionate about the facilitation of common spiritual vocabulary and inclusive opportunity.

He serves as Dean of Humanities and Social Sciences, and Dean of Students, with Tabor College. He is an active member of the International Network for the Study of Spirituality and the Society for the Study of Christian Spirituality. Phil's devotional writings, academic papers and publications can be accessed via his blog: <https://contemplativecorner429865032.wordpress.com/>

Why Jesus failed Christian Studies

These days, it seems people like Jesus. But don't like the church.

(Perhaps this is why only 5 in 12 young people born since 2005 are Christian, and only 2 in 12 go to church.)

Yet as Lutheran churches and schools, it can still be a struggle to go to where young people are at, and find ways to show them the revolutionary extraordinary lives Jesus offers.

One of the ways we can cut through is to show WWJD in how we bring love to life in practical action caring for others, through things like ALWS, Walk My Way and Gifts of Grace.

Behind that though is the way we share these stories and actions, and how we link it in authentic, no BS way to Christian faith.

We can also learn from the faith we see in those who have lost everything. That's the kind of stuff we'll talk about with you.

Raw and real.

Julie and Jonathan have two teenage sons, with 12 years of experience in Lutheran schools between them! Therefore, we know first-hand the wrestle with faith and Christian studies, alongside cars and girls and KFC and all the other challenges teens confront 😊

Julie is a trained Early Learning and Primary teacher, and also has a Diploma in Theology. She has worked as a chaplain, librarian, teacher in remote Aboriginal communities, and now with ALWS presenting in schools and churches.

Jonathan has worked as a Writer / Fundraiser / Strategist for aid agencies for 30+ years, and currently leads the Community Action team of ALWS. He is the author of 8 books, most of which seek to talk about God and faith in everyday language, through stories.

The Faith of the Next Generation

What's the faith of the next generation worth? The response we want to give to this question is, "everything" but is this the case? In this session we'll engage in a conversation around some key learnings from a church plant in a state school and explore practical steps your organisation can take to ensure that the faith of the next generation is your highest priority.

Chris leads Beyond Church, a church plant in the northern suburbs of Brisbane, which has a vision to 'create churches that unchurched people love to engage with'.

Chris has a passion for sharing the life-changing message of Jesus in a way that connects with unchurched and de-churched people. He is married to his beautiful wife Emma, and is what some people would refer to as a coffee snob.

Adam Yeager

Sex Education in Lutheran Schools

Given the recent public instances of sexual assault and harassment in government as well as in private schools around Australia, Lutheran education need to wrestle with how and why we teach our students about sex and sexuality. This presentation will review some of the current research around sexual activity of young people and effective forms of sex education as well as the Lutheran theology and history related to sex and education. This presentation will explore three main questions related to sex education:

- 1) Why should we provide Sex Education in Lutheran Schools?
- 2) What is the goal of Sex Education in Lutheran Schools?
- 3) What is needed to effectively teach Sex Education in Lutheran Schools?

This presentation will look at sex education from a Pastoral Care, Christian Studies and a Ministry and Worship perspective. [Please note that this presentation will primarily refer to a middle and senior school context but some of the philosophical underpinnings will be useful to a primary/junior school context as well. Also, this presentation will involve candid conversations around various forms of sexual activity as we review some of the data relevant to the topic at hand.]

Adam has served as a Chaplain and Senior Chaplain in Lutheran Schools for over 10 years. Currently the Senior Chaplain at Unity College, Adam's focus has been on establishing a wholistic approach to Lutheran Education that attempts to merge ministry and worship, pastoral care and Christian studies in order to provide a student-centric approach to faith-based education. Originally from Alaska, he lives in the Adelaide Hills with his Wife, Elischa and two sons Bryce and Tobias.

Church planting and Lutheran Schools – is there a mission match?

In the last few years church planting has emerged as a key strategy in the LCANZ's mission. Many Lutheran schools have shown an interest in church planting and the specific mission of the gospel in Lutheran schools. But is there a match between the mission of school and church planting? Can a fruitful way forward be found to partner between schools and church plants? Pastor Nathan Hedt explores this question with reference to his own and others' experiences of church plants co located in Lutheran schools. This session is designed to help you think through the possible synergies, barriers, and fruitfulness of such partnerships.

Nathan Hedt is the LCANZ Pastor for New and Renewing Churches. Previously he was church planting pastor and College Pastor at Lakeside College Pakenham, in Melbourne's south east. He has a great interest in exploring possible connections and synergies between the mission of church planting and the missional opportunities of Lutheran Schools.

Messages of Hope

Looking for content to inspire and encourage people? Maybe for chapel, devotions, and pastoral care?

Messages of Hope reaches millions of people, many who are struggling with their wellbeing. Interviews and conversations on wellbeing topics are shared on radio, social media and websites. Topics such as anxiety and depression, relationships, grief, guilt and shame, and stress are discussed.

Pastor Richard Fox will share stories from Messages of Hope about wellbeing, including what God has to say. The videos, podcasts, social media posts, scripts and articles can be used in your context to meet people where they are at with Jesus' message of hope.

You can watch videos, listen to podcasts, read about the topics and discover hope to help with wellbeing at messagesofhope.org.au.

Pastor Richard Fox presents weekly Messages of Hope interviews and conversations on hundreds of radio stations and social media including by videos, podcasts and text. He enjoys family life and watching sports. After working at Lutheran Care in SA and umpiring AFL, he now enjoys reaching millions of people with hope and seeing them be encouraged and inspired.

Wellbeing/Pastoral Care the Pacific Way

To learn and explore one school's story of pastoral care and wellbeing systems and practices.

Ben Ryan, the Director of Students at Pacific Lutheran College has been involved in education and school leadership for twenty years in the UK and Australia. His vision is for schools to develop students social and emotional capacities so that they may navigate through and flourish within an increasingly globalised world.

Leigh Finter, has been Head of House at Pacific for six years and is responsible for the pastoral care of secondary students. Her main interest and strength is integrating Restorative Practice into the everyday teaching and care for students and leading Pastoral Care staff in Circle Time to connect and develop students' sense of belonging and purpose.

Annie Williams, has been the counsellor at Pacific for ten years and is focused on enhancing educational outcomes for students as was helping their parents and families in the counselling process.

Tim Jarick, the college pastor at Pacific has worked in Lutheran schools in Victoria and Queensland and has an interest in positive psychology, mindfulness, meditation, and the theological and spiritual formation of staff.

Margaret Trevethan

Simple Prayer for Complex Times: The Gift of Christian Meditation

"It is important that even the smallest children learn to be still and not just to be quiet. It is in their stillness that God can speak to their hearts and they can discover the love of God..." Most Rev Michael E Putney Bishop of Townsville 2014

This session will explore Christian meditation as a form of prayer, its place in the Christian tradition, the importance of prayer and contemplation for our times. It will offer practical helps for getting started or deepening your own the practice, and also for introducing it to your students and staff.

Margaret is a catholic lay woman, married with children and grandchildren who has been a secondary school teacher, Parish Pastoral Associate, Adult Faith Educator and Campus Minister. She is a trained Spiritual Director and currently leads retreats and formation experiences mostly in the Townsville Diocese in North Queensland. Marg has a Grad Dip Arts (Christian Leadership), a Master of Theology and a Master of Conflict Resolution and Management. She was a member of the pilot group that first introduced Christian Meditation into Townsville Diocese Catholic Schools in 2005.

Rethinking Faith Formation

For many congregations and families (and perhaps Lutheran schools), sharing the Christian faith is an area of challenge. Culture and society have changed so much, raising many new questions, issues, and pressures. This is not about a new program or ideology, but instead remembering the ways God showed us to incorporate ministry into our everyday lives. We invite you to join us in rethinking faith formation ministry for a new age by exploring how we can develop healthy communities that help to create a culture that nurtures faith.

ALWS – Celia Fielke and Vicki Gollasch

Wednesday 26th May 1.00pm ACST 1.30pm AEST

"To give an overview of the way ALWS work in communities and the positive outcomes it has for the people. Stories will be shared of the recent help that has changed people's situations. We will also look at what a partnership with ALWS might look like and what practical ways schools can be involved. We will go through the 10 "instead ofs"...and look at how we can serve in the best way, bringing about the most positive change."
